

SOUL LEVEL WEALTH

Soul level wealth is about being spiritual and wealthy.

It's about living your life's purpose and using your personal currency to experience joy and make a difference. There's a circular effect when you are making a living using your personal currency—your gifts and talents—that start a ripple effect and make an impact and make money flow back to you. When you use your gifts, it creates money that can flow to you and help others. When you ignore this and work just for money, it often backfires. Soul level wealth isn't about the money, it's about the WHY behind the money and it's about what you can do with money to make a difference and improve the planet.

I've run across people who are spiritual and believe that you can't be spiritual and have money. That money somehow taints you or makes you less spiritual or questions your motives. I beg to differ. I've noticed the blessings that come to those who are increasing consciousness on the planet—those that are obedient to their life's contract. Using your natural gifts to make a contribution is a way to have more money flow to you.

“ Using your natural gifts to make a contribution is a way to have more money flow to you.

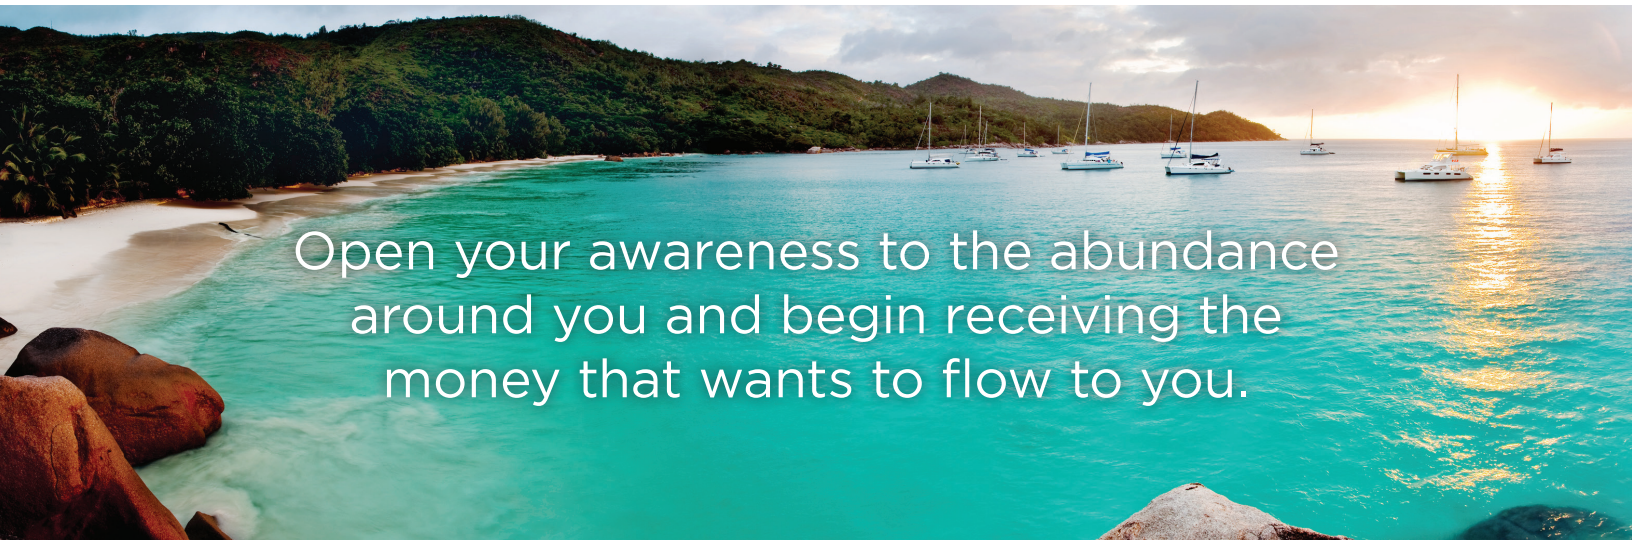

—Linda P. Jones

It's not about loving money, it's about using it as a tool to do good works. Being a giver allows you to help others and enjoy what life has to offer. Do you know how much good you can do by simply making small micro loans to villagers internationally or contributing to a school in Africa? Giving food to a food bank or to the homeless? We all can do these things, yet if we have more money we can make an even bigger difference. I also believe giving back and using money for enjoyable experiences, for example vacations, concerts, and socializing, are more important than having "things." Spending time with friends and loved ones can be one of the most meaningful and best uses of money.

Decide, expect and prepare for money to flow to you. Repelling it because you are spiritual doesn't do anyone any good. To exclude the abundance that wants to come to you is to reject part of the gift of life you've been given. Consider everything possible. Consider everything affordable. Don't screen out looking at anything because it's "too expensive." By doing so you are rejecting some of what life wants to give you. You are worthy and deserving of wealth and will receive more if you stop deflecting it and rejecting it. Open your awareness to the abundance around you and begin receiving the money that wants to flow to you.

“Spending time with friends and loved ones can be one of the most meaningful and best uses of money.

—Linda P. Jones

Open your awareness to the abundance around you and begin receiving the money that wants to flow to you.